32 The problem is that android has a little more requirements than the regular java project and i don't know how to tell eclipse that it has to use a 32 bits OS. Any idea? Thanks A: From the Java SE Development Kit 7.0 Update 4 page: The 32-bit JDK will be the default in the 32-bit JRE version when you create a new Eclipse Java project or import an existing project. So if you create a new Eclipse project and set it to JavaSE-1.6, you should get the 32 bit default. If you already have an Eclipse project, you could switch it to JavaSE-1.6 and then set the project SDK to the 32 bit version. You could also select to have multiple SDK's in the Eclipse project preferences. This link provides more info. Q: Append a trailing slash to a string in bash I want to append a trailing slash to an URL. For example, let url=" Should be appended to the url with a slash, such that, I tried the following but it doesn't work echo $url echo $url/ Any advice? Just use the notation: $url"/ $url/$url or $url="" Article content Within a month of being sworn in as Liberal Leader, Justin Trudeau announced that the party would not stand in a by-election in Brampton West, in the riding that has been held by former Toronto mayor Rob Ford for the past seven years.
